

A quiet morning opened over the valley.
Birds crossed the pale sky in patient arcs.

The road below was still empty.

By noon, the town had found its ordinary rhythm.
Doors opened and footsteps filled the square.